PROTECTED AREAS

CULTURAL TOURS

South Sudan as a country is blessed with vast cultures. Some of the areas of interest in cultural tourism are as below;

1. The Dinka cattle camp - The Dinka are South Sudan's most popular tribal group and occupy Juba city and as well as other Administrative states.

They practice nomadic pastoralism, with cattle playing a significant part in their lives. Individuals have cattle camps having up to 500 heads of cattle. These cattle offer insight to the lives of the Dinka and the possibility of visiting the cattle camps for the tourists.

2. Wrestling competition at Bor Freedom square - A must watch, this is one of the traditional sports among the tribes of South Sudan. While wrestling, the participants remove their upper clothing and challenge begins while the spectators watch. The winner goes with heads of cattle and this experience is best enjoyed during weekends.

CULTURAL TOURS

3. Visit Mundari community cattle camps -

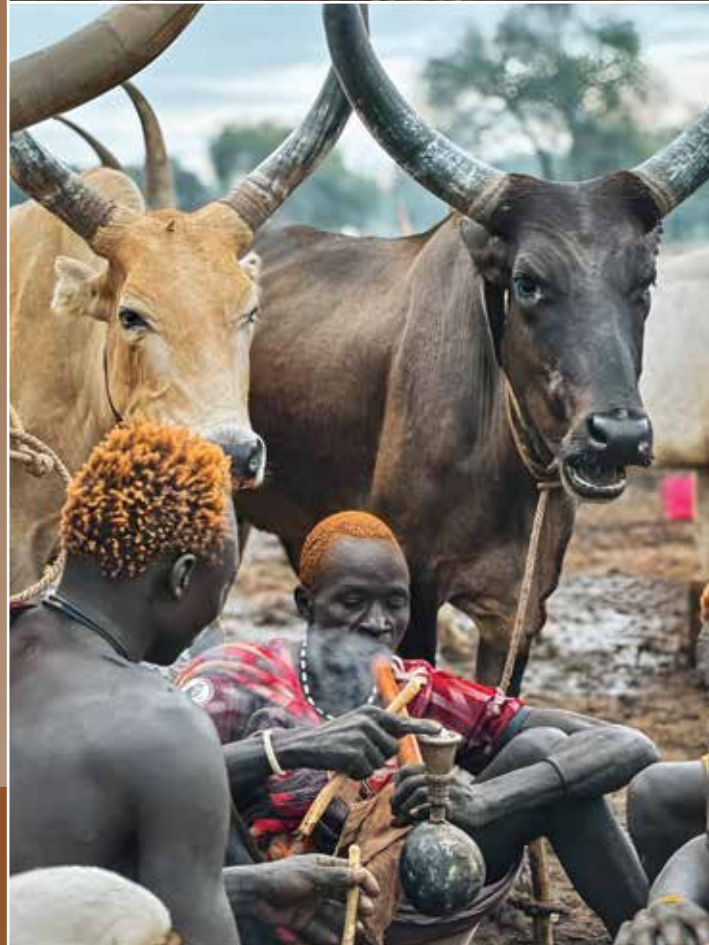

The Mundari community offers incredibly the most memorable cultural experience in South Sudan. Here you find a small ethnic group living in South Sudan. Like the Nilotic tribes, they are cattle oriented, they use the cattle for marriages.

The men are popular by bleaching their hair using cow urine turning it yellow-orange color. Besides cattle herding the Mundari also grow sorghum and fishing.

1. The Toposa people - They belong to the Karamojong cluster and largely depend on livestock rearing. Their culture is centered around cattle keeping, with own distinct identity and leadership. Art and body ornamentation hold significance among the Toposa. They are known for intricate body scarification, which represents cultural identity and beautification.

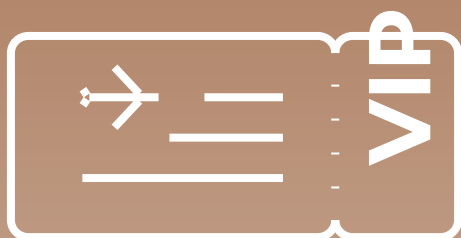

They also create colorful beadwork and leather ornaments as expressions of creativity and cultural heritage.

All tribes in South Sudan are interesting to visit. No single culture you can ever visit and feel bored. At the African Encounters, we have customized cultural safaris to South Sudan.
